PPP in India

Indian Government has identified Public Private Partnerships (PPP) as the cornerstone of its policy on infrastructure development. A number of policy and institutional initiatives like viability gap funding, provision of long tenor financing, etc. have been undertaken by the Government to promote PPP-based infrastructure development. Over the past decade, several PPP models have been developed to meet the growing need to create roads and bridges, airports, and other utilities. Significant growth in the number of PPPs in the past 15 years has made India one of the leading PPP markets in the world.

About India PPP Summit

With a view to discuss the policy issues relating to implementing PPP projects and highlighting investment opportunities for private investors, India PPP Summit was launched in 2012 by FICCI. The first three editions were instrumental in deliberating upon the procedural constraints that adversely impact the time-bound execution of PPP projects. Earlier editions have provided a platform to stakeholders for sharing their views on the Draft National PPP Policy and exchanging their experiences while dealing with different PPP nodal agencies at the Centre and State levels.

The fourth edition of the Summit will be held on 13 October 2015 at Federation House, Tansen Marg, New Delhi. This year, it will provide a platform to elicit stakeholders' views/suggestions for creating an enabling environment for scaling up PPPs. It aims to facilitate a clearer understanding of regulatory environment to foster private investments in infrastructure development via PPP mode through its interactive business sessions, case-studies, presentations and panel discussions.
